Peeling Back the Bark Exploring the collections, acquisitions, and treasures of the Forest History Society

Peeling Back the Bark is the award-winning blog of the Forest History Society. Blog posts discuss new archive acquisitions, online exhibits, and photo galleries, as well as highlights from the rich resources held in the society’s archives and photo collection. Other posts, such as one on illegal logging in China, explore forest history in the contemporary world. Guest bloggers have included leading scholars in environmental history, such as Stephen J. Pyne on wildfires in Australia; Char Miller on the Society of American Foresters; Nancy Langston on environmental health; and Curt Meine on the new Aldo Leopold documentary.

Peeling Back the Bark has received top awards from the Council for Advancement and Support of Education, the Center for Association Leadership, and ArchivesNext. You can subscribe to the blog by email or RSS feed by visiting www.PeelingBackTheBark.org.
