

ANNUAL REPORT 1999

From the Chairman

By Thomas R. Dunlap

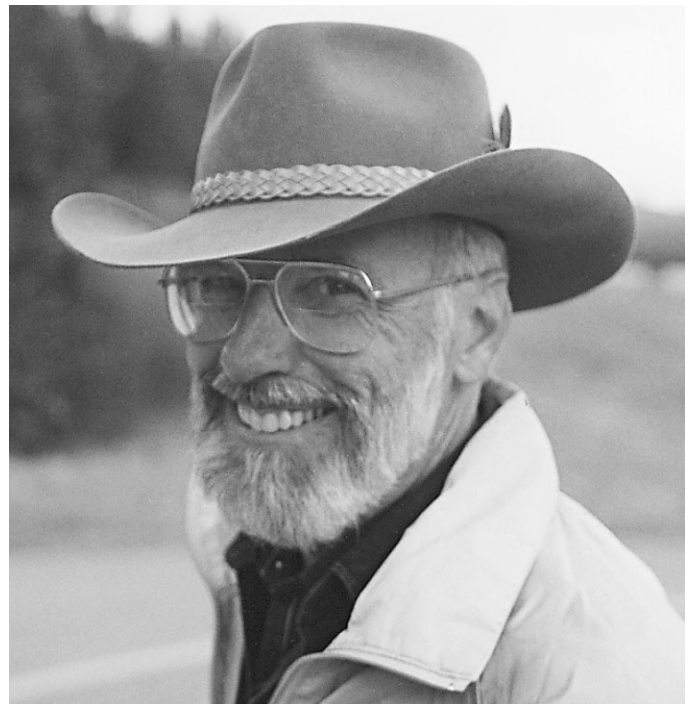

The expiration of my term as chairman of the board concluded nine years of service as member, then vice-chair, and then chair and I would like to reflect on more than the last year. In the early 1990s the solid ground on which the Society's programs had been built was shifting, as were the conditions under which non-profit foundations such as ours operated. During the last decade the Forest History Society has faced these challenges and met them. I believe we are well prepared for the future. We have a new president, Steve Anderson, enhanced programs, and plans for increased cooperation with several groups. We have held on to the best from the earlier era: the building and collections (much enhanced), the hard-working and enthusiastic staff, and the dedication and commitment of the members and the board.

Our support for academic forest history, through the journal Forest & Conservation History and our publications program, had helped over the last twenty years to foster a vigorous new field, environmental history. The Society has had to work out ways to serve that field without sacrificing its focus on forests. We have done so. Joint publication of Environmental History gives us an appropriate place in academic work. Through the F. K. Weyerhaeuser Fellowship, we are encouraging younger scholars. The Society will sponsor a conference at Duke University that will give environmental historians the chance to become more familiar with the Society and our collections. With Duke University the Society is sponsoring a lecture series—Professor William Cronon gave a very successful inaugural lecture, and it will soon be printed. Forest History Today presents important findings and ideas in a non-academic form. It should be of interest to anyone interested in our field. The Issue Series, which is successful and which we are seeking to improve, speaks to policy makers and the general public. On its own and in collaboration with Project Learning Tree, the Society is developing ways to integrate forest history into elementary education. Cooperative agreements with the U.S. Forest Service are making the Forest History Society even more important as a source for information on the Forest Service and the history of conservation.

Programs depend on facilities as well as ideas and discussion, and the Society has over the last decade made considerable progress. The library and archives are larger and better than they were ten years ago. Our web page and monitoring of environmental sites help FHS reach out beyond the building to make contact with scholars, students, and the general public. This, I should say, has been the result of hard work by the staff and generous support for an equipment upgrade. Yet, it is time once again to address space needs for critical library and archive functions. President Anderson is moving forward with Duke University to discuss a potential collaborative effort that could include a new building.

I am glad to have had a hand in some of this work and I would like to thank all the board members who have served with me. Your dedication and hard work has been the key element in the continuing development of the Forest History Society. My particular thanks go out to Lynn W. Day, who recently passed away. Lynn's hard work, intelligence, and good humor were for many years a major asset to the board. Many people will miss her. I would like to thank as well Steve Anderson and the office staff in Durham, who have carried the daily load. Finally, I offer my best wishes to those who have supported the society through dues, donated materials, and contributions. Ultimately it is the interest and support of the members that formed the society, gave it a voice and a place in the public discussion of forests, and allow it to carry on its mission of helping us understand the importance of forests in our lives and our society.

Treasurer's Report

Included below is the balance sheet as of our most recently completed year-end June 30, 1999. As has been our policy for many years, the financial statements of the Forest History Society, Inc. have been audited by an independent accountant, Andrew B. Curl, Certified Public Accountant. We are pleased to announce that Mr. Curl has issued an unqualified report, stating that the financial statements of the Society are fairly presented in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles.

We ended our fiscal year with a net surplus in all funds. Total net assets between 1999 and 1998 increased approximately $525,000. The greatest portion of the increase was a result of positive investment results once again in our endowment fund.

As can be seen from the balance sheet, we had $6,381,000 of marketable securities as of June 30, 1999. Most of these securities are in the endowment fund and all are invested through the Frank Russell Company. Each year our Board of Directors reviews the investment guidelines and our endowment performance. In accordance with those guidelines, as of June 30, 1999, approximately 75% of the funds were invested in a variety of equity securities with the remainder in fixed income securities.

During the year our computer systems were upgraded to be Year 2000 compliant and we do not anticipate any issues of concern. A balanced budget has been approved for the current year.

SEARCH FOR EDITOR OF ENVIRONMENTAL HISTORY

The American Society for Environmental History and the Forest History Society are seeking a new editor for their joint journal, ENVIRONMENTAL HISTORY. The current editor, Hal Rothman, will be stepping down at the end of 2001, and his successor will be expected to begin taking on editorial responsibilities during the summer of 2001 and control of operations by the end of the year. Duties will include all activities associated with the editorial content of the journal—soliciting and commissioning articles as appropriate, screening submissions, and determining the contents of each issue. The editor will work with the production staff, located at the Forest History Society offices in Durham, NC, with the associate editors, and with the book review editor in the production process. Candidates should have a wide knowledge of and interest in the areas the journal covers and experience with academic editing. For inquiries and application instructions contact the head of the Search Committee, Professor Thomas Dunlap, Department of History, Texas A & M University, College Station, TX 77843-4236 (phone 409-845-7107; e-mail t-dunlap@tamu.edu).
